This training examines in detail the field of tribal court sentencing alternatives. It is designed to improve the skills of probation officers and to explore new sentencing methods. This training is for judges, probation officers (adult and juvenile), police officers, and correction staff. Effective sentencing alternatives are vital to the operation of tribal courts. This session explores a range of issues concerning tribal court probation: the evolution of tribal court systems, the essential components of tribal court probation, mandates of the Indian Civil Rights Act, diversion programs, sentencing alternatives, pre-sentence investigations and reports, probation hearings, probation orders, and probation agreements, monitoring of probation, interaction with rehabilitation agencies, modification of probation, revocation of probation, release from probation, and best practices in the field. Trainees will participate actively in the training process. Trainees will receive a training manual and certificate of achievement.

This Training Will Examine

- Update on Tribal Courts Today
- Indian Civil Rights Act
- Tribal Law & Order Act 2010
